IKE MAPPING FIGHT FOR PROGRAM

Beck May Be Ousted

AFL-CIO To Demand Removals

WASHINGTON (UP) — Teamsters Union leaders may ask Teamster President Dave Beck and two vice presidents to resign or "retire" as a result of AFL-CIO charges of corruption, informed sources said today.

The charges, presented the union Monday by the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee, indicated the AFL-CIO ultimately will demand that the union either oust the three national officers and a number of local union officials or get out of the AFL-CIO.

The Teamster Executive Board including Beck requested and received "reasonable time" to prepare a reply to the charges. The committee set May 24 to hear it.

Beck was scheduled to make a return appearance Wednesday before the Senate Rackets Committee. He also faces "trial" May 20 before the full AFL-CIO Executive Council on charges that his conduct has brought the labor movement into disrepute.

Use of Funds Charged

The committee charged that Beck and Teamster Vice President Frank Brewster of Seattle, Wash., have used union funds for "personal purposes" and their official union positions "for personal profit or advantage."

The committee said the charges were based on disclosures by the Senate Rackets Committee. Beck's nationally-televised admission that he "borrowed" more than $300,000 of union funds without interest and on his use of the Fifth Amendment 117 times to avoid answering questions before the Senate committee.

The committee also charged Teamster Vice President Sidney Brennan of Minneapolis with "corrupt activities." He has been convicted of accepting money from an employer for alleged "strike breaking."

Finally, the committee indicted the entire leadership of the big union for their "apparent failure" to investigate or take any other action regarding the three national officers, a number of local officials in New York and Scranton, Pa., and, Senate charges of "corruption and racketeering" in Brewster's West Coast division of the union.

Question of Resignation

In answer to inquiries as to whether the union Executive Board would ask for Beck's resignation, the board passed a resolution saying his resignation had never been discussed or requested.

But sources close to the union said they expected the question of resignation by Beck, Brewster and Brennan to be discussed among the union's leaders in the next several weeks.

Beck so far has not backed down from his announced intention to run for reelection at the union's September convention. Nor have the other two national officers announced any intention to quit their posts.

But several union officers, including Secretary-Treasurer John R. English, Vice Presidents William Lee of Chicago and Thomas Hickey of New York are understood to be prepared to do everything they can to keep the union within the AFL-CIO.

GUSTAV SAYS NO — King Gustav of Sweden turned down the request of British jazz pianist Robin Douglas-Home for the hand of his granddaughter, Princess Margaretha (above). No money, no position, the king decided. But the word is that in a year or so Douglas-Home could get an answer he'd like better. The romance began when they met in London.

Charleroi Priest Slightly Hurt In Auto Crash

The Rev. Raymond Higgins, 44, assistant pastor of St. Jerome Roman Catholic Church, Charleroi, was slightly injured early this morning when the car he was driving ran into an oncoming truck on Craven Hill near North Charleroi on Rt 88.

Father Higgins is in Charleroi-Monessen Hospital with lacerations of both legs and bruises of the right hand.

State Police said Father Higgins apparently dozed off while traveling towards Charleroi about 1:15 this morning. The driver of the truck, James Stump, 21 of R. D. 2, Belle Vernon, was not hurt, it was said.

Damage amounted to about $750.

Neither driver was injured in a two-car crash on Rt 51 near Twin Coaches about 4:30 p.m. yesterday. The cars traveling in opposite directions were operated by Albert Sunner, 47, of Pittsburgh, and Charles Kanes, 34, of R. D., Belle Vernon.

Damage was placed at $400.

The meeting is jointly sponsored by the South Greensburg and Midway-St. Clair fire departments.

Absenteeism Threatens Plans of Assembly to Adjourn This Month

HARRISBURG (UP) — Spring fever may threaten plans of the Republican-dominated General Assembly for final adjournment by the end of this month.

Lawmakers predicted privately today that the current sessions may run into and perhaps past the middle of June because of absenteeism and plans for several recesses near the end of May.

Last week the absentee problem hit the House of Representatives, and several key GOP measures fell when the Republicans were unable to muster a clear working majority.

Monday night the absence of at least three Republican senators prevented the GOP majority from acting on key, controversial legislation. Although Democratic votes helped push through a proposed constitutional amendment which would make the office of state attorney general elective, final action was postponed on another change in the state's basic law dealing with the election of Supreme Court judges. It appeared the Democratic minority would be solidly against this change.

The Republican majority aims at preventing recurrence of a situation which has brought Democratic representation on the state Supreme Court to three of the seven members.

Under the Constitution, when two vacancies occur on the court a man from each of the parties must be elected. The Republicans have not lost an election in many years where only one vacancy is to be filled.

Proposes Two Candidates

The proposed constitutional change would permit nomination of two candidates from each party and in the election the two candidates polling the most votes, irrespective of party affiliation, would be named to the high tribunal.

The Senate passed 33-11 and sent to the House the proposed constitutional change to make the office of attorney general elective rather than appointive. But no action was taken on a third proposed amendment to abolish the Department of Internal Affairs.

In the House, one of the major proposals in the 5-point GOP legislative program reached the floor. It would increase state subsidies for local school districts by approximately 15 million dollars annually, starting June 1.

Gov. George M. Leader rejected a similar subsidy increase during the last session on the grounds the Legislature had failed to provide the funds to finance it. Republican leaders declined to

Picket Lines Withdrawn at Nearby Project

The Mon Valley Building and Construction Trades Council (AFL-CIO) today stated that picket lines have been withdrawn from in front of a dairy bar being erected on the Monessen-Pricedale Rd.

The picket line was thrown up April 20 because the union charged non-union carpenters, plumbers and electricians were being used on the construction.

Union business agents Eugene Coven, representing plumbers, and Sam Conrad, representing carpenters, said today that a union contractor has been hired to complete work on the building being erected by Nazareth Victoria, also of Monessen-Pricedale Rd.

Coven and Conrad said they were assisted in the negotiations by officers of Monessen Pittsburgh Steel Local 1220, United Steelworkers (AFL-CIO).

Police Report No Clues in Charleroi Theft

Police authorities indicated today they were without clues to the identity of the man who broke in to the Quality Meat Market in Charleroi sometime early yesterday morning and looted a safe of $7,369 in cash and checks.

Reports said the safe contained $4,075 in cash and $2,654 in checks.

Officers said the burglary was discovered Monday when the owner, John Kach, arrived to open the shop.

They said the safecrackers broke into the store through a rear door, crawled along the floor of the well-lighted establishment in order to escape detection by passersby and entered the cellar where the safe was kept.

Police said the hoods opened the safe by chiseling off its combination dial and manipulating the tumblers with a punch.

Authorities first said the burglars had used a sledge hammer to gain entrance into the safe.

BURGLARS LOOT CHARLEROI SAFE — John Kach, owner of the Quality Meat Market of Charleroi, looks at the safe broken into and looted of more than $7,000 in cash and checks yesterday morning. Police are without clues as to the identity of the burglars.

ATOMIC EXPOSURE — SHUNNED — Playmates won't play anymore with Del James Northway, 5, of his dog, either, in their Houston, Tex., neighborhood. Friends won't have anything to do with the rest of the Northway family. It's like this. Harold E. Northway, 51, Del's dad, is one of four men contaminated when radioactive pellets disintegrated in the nuclear products division of the M. W. Kellogg company. It happened March 31. Since then, the four men have been under surveillance by atomic experts. Northway was manager of the division till it was shut down after the accident.

Annexation Group to Plan Another Appeal

The School Annexation Committee of Monessen last night decided to prepare another appeal to the State Council of Education requesting that children living in the two portions of Rostraver Twp. annexed to Monessen in 1955 be allowed to attend Monessen schools.

A similar request by the Committee was turned down in Harrisburg last week because, according to the Council, "the township has committed itself to financial obligations on account of buildings and a loss as represented by the assessed valuation. . . would work an undue hardship on the pupils in the remaining portion of the township."

The annexation, approved by courts in 1955, made the two portions a part of the City of Monessen. It did not change the school boundaries, however and the annexed areas remained part of the township School District.

To Hire Attorney

At last night's meeting, Dr. Ralph M. Cherkin, chairman, discussed the council's ruling with the 20 persons present and suggested that the committee continue its fight to have Monessen children attend Monessen schools. His suggestion was adopted unanimously.

The group decided to hire an attorney "to present and fight its case before the Council." A committee was selected to solicit funds from residents in the annexed areas to pay for legal fees and other expenses. The committee will seek a minimum of $5 from each family.

Joseph Miller, a resident, said he will attend the next meeting of the Monessen School Board to see if the local School District will "help us in this fight."

One resident said the Monessen School district is giving us nothing but lip service in our fight to get into the District."

No member of the local school Board was present.

Miller also wanted to know why the Monessen school solicitor David H. Weiss "doesn't do something."

Dr. Cherkin said that Weiss is ineligible to take any action because he is also the solicitor for Rostraver Twp.

Dr. Cherkin said the township has two attorneys and "I believe we should have some legal representation on our side."

His suggestion again was adopted unanimously.

Webster Firemen Busy Yesterday

Three field fires kept Webster firemen busy for about 12 hours yesterday.

One of the fires kept some of the firemen on duty for 12 straight hours. The one occurred at Ebbie Lynn's farm on Rt. 51 beginning at 10:15 yesterday morning. Fed by high winds, the fire swept over 20 acres befor being extinguished about 10 o'clock last night.

Some of the firemen had to leave the Lynn fire to answer alarms at the Robert Roberts property and near the Lenity school area on Salem Rd.

To Seek Public Support Behind Top Legislation

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower will launch a major campaign to enlist public support behind his legislative program including his embattled budget, informed sources said today.

The campaign will take several directions including the President's weekly news conferences and a nationwide radio-television speech in the near future. His next news conference will be on Wednesday.

But the President has definitely made up his mind to speak out strongly in behalf of his program and budget at every opportunity — as many of his supporters in Congress have been urging.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said no decision will be made on the details until after a scheduled White House conference Thursday at which the President will discuss foreign aid and the budget with congressional leaders of both parties.

Hagerty did not expect Eisenhower to make any major radio-TV appearance this week. The secretary said he has not yet asked network time.

Case Backs Plan

Sen. Clifford P. Case (R-N J.), a strong Eisenhower supporter, said a nationwide presentation by the President of the "urgent necessity and reasonableness" of his legislative proposals and budget would be "irresistible."

But House Democratic Leader John W. McCormack (Mass.) said when the President "goes to the people fighting for his budget, he will be fighting his own party." McCormack said more Republicans than Democrats have voted against the President on budget items.

Eisenhower certainly faces an uphill fight. Many Democrats and Republicans in Congress are lustily swinging the economy axe under prodding from voters back home.

Knowland's Criticism Grows

The President's budget took another volley of verbal blows Monday night, not only from powerful Democrats but from Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland who is steadily moving more and more into a position of opposition to the GOP Chief Executive.

Knowland told a Republican dinner at Grand Rapids, Mich., that Eisenhower's 72 billion dollar spending program for the 12 months starting July 1 is a major liability of the GOP administration. He again pledged his best efforts to cut the budget by at least three billion dollars, adding that cutting the budget "must not be any single shot effort."

"In future years we must continue to keep federal expenditures from increasing and, wherever possible, to reduce them," he said. "Only this way can our burdensome taxes and national debt be steadily reduced."

Equal Rights for Women Are Urged

HARRISBURG (UP) — The General Assembly today considered Republican sponsored legislation to give married women equal property rights with married men.

A House bill would provide married women with the same rights as men to "own, possess or control any property." The legislation, long sought by Gov. George M. Leader, was contained in the GOP platform for Assembly action this session.

County Planning Group Sets Up Financial Rules

Certain regulations must be met before community planning commissions can obtain financial assistance from the Westmoreland County Planning Commission, it was decided at a meeting of the county organization yesterday afternoon in Greensburg.

Individual commissions, it was stated, must first show good intentions in their planning by using some of their own funds for projects.

The county organization said the regulations to be followed are: "(1) Local planning commissions must have sub-division control plans. (2) must be planning towards organizing a central regional planning commission, and (3) must be specific and not general in planning their projects.

The County Commission said it is considering a plan to match up to a maximum of 10 cents per capita the money invested by local commissions. The regulations must be strictly adhered to before financial assistance can be obtained, it was stated.

During yesterday's general business meeting, presided over by Atty. Avra Pershing, Jr., of Greensburg, the Commission adopted by-laws and reviewed several requests.

The Commission will meet the first Monday of each month in the court house. Meetings are opened to the public.

Largest Station

LONDON (UP) — Britain's Central Electricity Authority said today it plans to build the world's largest power station at a cost of 112 million dollars.

County Recorder of Deeds for Loughran

Mrs. Jessie Smith McCormick, Westmoreland County recorder of deeds, today took a rap at "self-appointed dictatorship" within the County Democratic party and at the same time announced her support of Joseph Loughran, candidate for judge of Common Pleas Court.

In backing Loughran, she said "For years the Democratic headquarters refrained from taking sides in a primary campaign on the ground that any Democrat has a right to run. If he is successful he deserves the support of the organization."

Mrs. McCormick charged that a group has attempted to pick candidates.

"Some few years ago," Mrs. McCormick said, "A small group of men, Buddy Turner and his cohorts, began to move in and set themselves up as the Democratic organization."

Mrs. McCormick said the group dictated who would be candidates. "They put out ballots marked with the names of those they favored, giving the impression that these were the choices of the Democratic organization. This I am opposed to," she said.

"I served as vice chairman of the organization for 16 years along with Rabe Marsh and later the present chairman, Jay Kromer."

Mrs. McCormick said: "I declined to run last year because I wasn't willing to play along with Buddy Turner and his cohorts."

She said that "I am exercising my right to work for any candidate I choose. I consider Joseph Loughran best fitted of all the candidates in training and experience to be a judge."

Mrs. McCormick in her statement said: "Most important is that the time has come to challenge the Buddy Turner gang."

Arthur B. Turner, to whom Mrs. McCormick refers, is chairman of Westmoreland County detectives appointed by the district attorney.

Sutersville Lad, Missing Since Friday, Found

A 14-year-old Sutersville youth, missing from his home since early Friday morning, has been located in Louisiana, it was learned this morning.

The Westmoreland County sheriff's office in Greensburg this morning was notified that the missing youth, Donald Deutsch, is being detained by Louisiana authorities pending word from the youth's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Deutsch.

An honor student at West Newton High School, Donald left home about 6:30 Friday morning. His parents had traveled throughout the state in search of him. No reason has been given for his disappearance.

According to them, its their son had never been in trouble and was active in Scouting and Sunday School activities.

The father said the son was scheduled to undergo an operation at the close of the present school term. Donald reportedly is subject to violent headaches.

Donald's teachers said he is one of their better students and never was in trouble in school.

Charles Smith Takes Office as Auditor General

HARRISBURG (UP) — Charles C. Smith, Philadelphia businessman and longtime Republican legislative leader, took the oath of office as state auditor general today with a pledge to be a "watchdog" over the Commonwealth's fiscal affairs.

New Alignment In Middle East Expected Soon

By UNITED PRESS

Middle East dispatches hinted today at a new alignment of power that might leave Egypt and Syria isolated from the other Arab nations.

Egypt's sem-official Middle East News Agency reported from Damascus that Jordan, Iraq and Saudi Arabia are contemplating the creation of a new three-power pact.

Iraq is now a member of the Baghdad Pact. Jordan and Saudi Arabia are linked with Egypt and Syria in a four-power military alliance.

The Middle East News Agency said Jordan—which rejected the Baghdad Pact following nation-wide rioting last year — is trying to persuade Iraq to quit the Baghdad Pact.

There was no confirmation of the reports, but King Saud of Saudi Arabia is paying a state visit to King Feisal of Iraq within a few days and King Hussein will follow up the visit by going to Baghdad a few days later.

Any such realignment would result in large part from King Hussein's government crisis in which pro-Soviet Syrian leaders gave refuge to Jordanian military leaders since denounced as "traitors" and Cairo Radio kept up steady streams of propaganda to bolster Hussein's left-wing political opponents.

A Cairo dispatch reported today that two of the ousted leaders had gone there from Damascus—Maj. Gen. Ali Abu Nuwar and Maj. Gen. Ali Hiyyari. Nuwar was ousted as chief of staff at start of the Jordan crisis; Hiyyari, his sucessor, then fled to Syria.

United Press Correspondent Joe Morris reported from Amman today that diplomats there said the isolating of Syria and Egypt from the other Arab nations had been one of the major results of the Mideast mission of U.S. Special Envoy James P. Richards.

Band Parents Plan Banquet Here May 23

Plans were made for a Spring banquet for members of the Monessen High School Band and Orchestra, when the Band-Orchestra Parents Association met last night at the cafeteria in the High School.

The banquet will be held in the Slovak Home on May 23 with Mrs. Michael Buchar as chairman. A committee of members will assist.

Mrs. Michael Kunsa, president, was in charge of the meeting, which began with the pledge of allegiance and routine reports by Mrs. Alvin Roberts, acting secretary and Arvo Isaho, treasurer.

It was announced that Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lear have donated an American flag to the organization.

Mrs. Nicholas Polkabla, chairman of the ways and means committee, made a final report on the sale of honorary membership cards and Mrs. Thomas Hawkins reported that several members have been added to the rolls.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Ray Lear, Mrs. John Olchak, Mrs. Andrew Monetti, Mrs. John Dziak and Mrs. Fred D'Antonnio.

The next meeting will be June 3.

Press Cars Are To Be Reduced, White House Says

WASHINGTON (UP)—The White House said today that press cars accompanying President Eisenhower to and from Gettysburg are part of the official motorcade but may have to be reduced in number.

Last Sunday Pennsylvania state police attempted to stop press cars behind the President as he returned from Gettysburg. They said they had been told by the Secret Service that the press cars were not part of the official procession.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said today that this was incorrect. He said the White House and Secret Service consider automobiles carrying reporters and photographers as part of the Eisenhower motorcade.

Hagerty said he feels certain that the Sunday incident will not be repeated. But he added he does believe 8 or 10 cars following the White House vehicles make the motorcade too long. The White House may request Hagerty said, that the number of press and photo cars be reduced to three or four.

Eight cars were following six White House cars Sunday when a Pennsylvania police car pulled the first press car off the road and threatened the driver with arrest in the future for attempting to stick with the President.

Hagerty's attitude today was that this police interference was not authorized or requested by the White House.

James A. Garfield died the youngest of all Presidents of the United States.

say how this increase would be financed beyond stating it is "accounted for" in the $1,500,000,000 budget at which they are aiming.

The school subsidy bill would increase the maximum subsidy for teaching units from $5,100 to $6,000 per unit for the current school year and to $6,300 for 1957-58 and thereafter.

Limits Subsidy

An amendment added before the bill reached the House floor will prevent any school district from profiting at the expense of the taxpayers, sponsors of the change said. It provides that no school district will receive a state subsidy greater than what it actually spends for cost of instruction.

The state also would no longer finance adult recreation classes including courses in bridge, folk dancing, basket weaving, quilt making, interior decorating, ballet dancing and oil painting. Endorsers of the change contended that such courses have cost the Commonwealth $1,200,000 annually.

Action in both chambers was still proceeding at a rate too slow to enable the lawmakers to meet their original final adjournment date—May 30 or June 1. House GOP Whip Rep. Allen M. Gibson (R-Warren) said the appropriation bills will not start rolling until next week and estimated the Senate may not receive them until near the end of May.

He pointed out that the two chambers do not plan to meet the first two days of the week of May 19 when the spring primary will be held. And it is likely that the lawmakers will be in session only two days the following week which includes Memorial Day.

PITTSBURGH SPEAKER — Dean of American cardiologists and chief consulting cardiologist to President Eisenhower, Dr. Paul Dudley White (above) will be the speaker at the annual dinner meeting of the Western Pennsylvania Heart Association Tuesday, May 28 in Hotel Webster Hall, Pittsburgh.

Senate Approves Factual Study of Highway System

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Senate has unanimously approved a Republican-sponsored resolution requesting the Automotive Safety Foundation to make a study of the Pennsylvania highway system and the state Highways Department.

The measure, which now goes to the House would authorize the non-profit organization to make "an impartial and factual study," with the cost to be paid from the Motor License Fund, and the results to be published "for the information of the general public and the General Assembly.

House Majority Leader Albert W. Johnson (R-McKean) introduced a resolution in that chamber to direct the Joint State Government Commission to determine whether highway safety "would be enhanced" if truck drivers were required to obtain special operator's licenses.

Johnson's resolution would have the Assembly's research arm determine if there was a need for so-called chauffeur's licensing and if so, recommend appropriate legislation.

Another resolution approved by the Senate and sent to the House would "request" the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission to change the name of some of its interchanges to better advise motorists on the toll road what communities are served by each exit

Baby Falls 75 Feet; Suffers Few Bruises

PATRICK SPRINGS, Va. (UP) — Little Susan Ehmann today had only a bruise and a cut to show for her fall 75 feet to the bottom of a dry well.

The 16-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Ehmann was rescued within an hour after she apparently pushed aside boards covering the abandoned well and fell in.

Her brother, Pat, 3, called their grandmother, who flagged passing motorists. A man went down the well on a rope and was pulled out with the baby by other rescuers.

GOP Treasurer Key Witness at Hearing

PITTSBURGH (UP)—A former state Republican campaign committee treasurer who said he collected "in excess of $400,000" for the unsuccessful GOP campaign in 1954 built up as a key witness today in the conspiracy trial of four former state officials and employes.

The witness, Kenneth K. Long, Lewisburg, opened his testimony Monday by detailing his activities in the campaign of former Lt. Gov. Lloyd H. Wood to move up to the governor's post.

The charges against the defendants grew out of an investigation of allegations that state employes were forced to contribute a percentage of their salaries to the GOP campaign chest.

On trial on charges of conspiracy "to do an unlawful act" are Artemas C. Leslie, state insurance commissioner from 1950 to 1955, Frederick P. Hare, administrative assistant to former Gov. John S. Fine; George A. Nash, former secretary of the state Department of Revenue, and Frederick M. Campbell, former Insurance Department investigator.

Long testified that while employed as an adjustor in the state Workmen's Insurance Fund office, he was called to Harrisburg by Duncan McCallum, the governor's secretary, and was given a leave of absence to collect campaign funds.

"I was told to establish an office in Harrisburg and to receive voluntary contributions for the campaign," Long said.

He said no percentage was mentioned in connection with state employes' contributions and insisted that all contributions he received were "voluntary."

In his opening address to the jury of four men and eight women, Asst. Dist. Sidney A. Sanes defined "maiming" as "one state employe forcing another state employe" to contribute to a campaign fund. This, he said, is "unlawful and creates inefficient government."

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader today signed into law three bills affecting the state's 47 third-class cities.

One provides that if city council fails to fill a vacancy in the office of city controller or city treasurer within 30 days the office shall be filled by appointment of the Common Pleas Court in that county.

Another gives city council discretionary power to provide for an audit of municipal accounts by an independent certified public accountant. Under the old law that power of council was mandatory.

An estimated 25-30,000 persons filed through St. Mary's Catholic Church Monday night and today to view the controversial senator's body.

A solemn requiem high mass was to be sung for him this afternoon.

McCarthy was to be buried late today with military honors in St. Mary's Cemetery beside his parents, Timothy and Bridget McCarthy.

More than 1,000 persons crowded the church and its basement for the final rites, and hundreds of others listened to the services over loudspeakers on the church lawn.

Other Services

Services were conducted by the Rev. Adam M. Grill in the same little church where McCarthy, 48, was baptized Nov. 23, 1908—nine days after his birth.

Two other services were held Monday in the U.S. Senate and St. Matthews Church in Washington, D.C.

The body of the senator, who died last Thursday of hepatitis, was flown to Green Bay, Wis., after the services in Washington Monday.

Tears glinted in the eyes of McCarthy's young widow, Mrs. Jean McCarthy, when she alighted from the plane.

McCarthy's body was placed in a hearse and autos containing a special congressional delegation came after her.

Sheriff Don Heinritz estimated that from 10,000 to 15,000 persons watched McCarthy's hearse as the cortege moved from Green Bay to Appleton.

Ike Will Ask Congress For Foreign Aid Slash

Dulles Hurrying Home for Parley With President

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower plans to ask Congress in about 10 days for a new scaled-down foreign aid program of approximately $3,900,000,000

Administration officials said today they are working overtime to get the project into final shape by May 17. Chief attention centers on problems related to a new economic development loan fund expected to total about 500 million dollars for the first year.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Ambassador James P. Richards are hurrying home from Europe and the Middle East for a special White House meeting on foreign aid. The meeting with Republican and Democratic congressional leaders will be held Thursday.

Dulles was scheduled to arrive today from the North Atlantic Treaty meeting in Bonn, Germany, to lead the administration's fight for its foreign aid program. Richards arrives Wednesday from the Middle East where he has been selling the Eisenhower Doctrine of economic and military assistance against Communist penetration of the oil-rich Bible lands.

When Eisenhower presented his budget earlier this year he estimated his foreign aid request at $4,400,000,000. On April 18, however, he said 500 million dollars in new spending authority could be cut from his earlier estimate due to savings on military aid.

Administration officials expect a tough fight with congressional budget-cutters even on the scaled-down request. Some budget cutters want to cut foreign aid in half, or deeper. Eisenhower is sure to urge approval of the full $3,900,000,000 as a vital contribution to the free world's fight against Communism.

Urging Car Dealers Close on Sundays

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Pennsylvania Automotive Association today supported legislation to force new and used car dealers to keep their business places closed on Sundays.

The organization said that automobile dealers, themselves, are seeking the legislation because of its "important" bearing on employer-employe relations.

Fireworks Plant Is Rocked by Blasts

DAYTON, Ohio (UP)—Two spectacular explosions rocked the United Fireworks Co. Monday night only hours after a visiting Japanese fireworks manufacturer praised the plant for its safety features.

Officials estimated the loss of two buildings destroyed in the blasts at $40,000. One fireman was injured slightly and was treated at the scene. The last shift had left the plant more than four hours before.

Arthur Hinkle, the night watchman, said he was in a car several hundred yards from the explosions.

"Flames shot way up into the sky with flowers and clusters of fireworks all over the place," he said. "It was beautiful in a way. The explosion was tremendous and shook the ground."

Walter Beachler, owner of the plant, could offer no explanation of the explosions, which occurred about 8:30 p.m.

Beachler said the plant had been in operation 6 years and there had been no trouble in the two buildings that blew up, a shipping room and storage building.

Earlier, Toshio Ogatsu, head of the Marutanaya Ogatsu Fireworks Co., Ltd., Tokyo, had visited the plant and was impressed with its safe operation.

Ogatsu, whose company was established in 1618 and is the world's oldest fireworks firm, had stopped on his way back to Japan after coming to this country to stage a display at the World Trade Fair in New York.

"I will propose to the Japanese government that we adopt some of the safety factors I've seen here," Ogatsu said after seeing the plant.

Firemen put the fires which resulted from the blasts under control in a little more than hour. One fire department tanker was damaged.

The plant was well isolated from homes in the area, although windows in some houses were broken as far as five miles away by the force of the blast.

UP Newsman, Russell Jones, Awarded the Pulitzer Prize

NEW YORK (UP) — United Press staff correspondent Russell Jones was awarded the Pulitzer Prize for international reporting Monday for "his excellent and sustained coverage of the Hungarian revolt against Communist domination."

Jones, the only American newspaperman in Budapest from Nov. 11 until he was expelled Dec. 6, already had received two other awards for his coverage of the Hungarian freedom fight — the George Polk Memorial Award and a Sigma Delta Chi citation for distinguished service in foreign correspondence.

The Chicago Daily News won the award for meritorious public service by a newspaper for its exposure of fraud in the office of Illinois State Auditor Orville E. Hodge. The exposure resulted in a jail sentence for Hodge.

Wallace Turner and William Lambert of the Portland Oregonian won the prize for distinguished local reporting without pressure of deadline time. They were cited for their exposure of vice and corruption involving Portland municipal officials and officers of the Teamsters Union. Their exposes began an investigation that reached into the top echelon of the Teamsters Union and since has moved to Washington.

Local Reporting Honor

The staff of the Salt Lake City Tribune received the award for local reporting under pressure of edition time for coverage of the collision of two airliners over Grand Canyon. "This was a great team job that surmounted great difficulties in distance, time and terrain" the citation said.

The prize for the best play went posthumously to Eugene O'Neill, the fourth Pulitzer Prize for the dramatist. The latest citation was for "Long Day's Journey Into Night," now playing in New York.

The prize for biography went to Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) for his book "Profiles In Courage," a study of political integrity using as examples a number of past American politicians.

The history prize was awarded to George F. Kennan, former State Department policy adviser, for "Russia Leaves the War." Kennan now is with the Institute of Advanced Studies at Princeton, N.J.

Other prizes included:

—James Reston of the New York Times for "distinguished national correspondence . . . an outstanding example of which was his five-part analysis of the effect of President Eisenhower's illness on the function of the executive branch of the government." Reston won the national affairs reporting award in 1945.

—Buford Boone, president and publisher of the Tuscaloosa (Ala.) News for "his fearless and reasoned editorials in a community inflamed by a segregation issue, an outstanding example of his work being the editorial entitled 'What A Price For Peace,' published on Feb. 7, 1957."

Cartoon Award

—Tom Little of the Nashville Tennessean for his cartoon depicting a boy on crutches and wearing leg braces watching a neighborhood football game. The caption read, "Wonder why my parents didn't give me Salk shots."

—Harry Trask of the Boston Traveler "for his dramatic and outstanding photographic sequence of the sinking of the liner Andrea Doria." The prize - winning pictures were taken from a plane flying 75 feet above the water, nine minutes before the liner sank.

—Richard Wilbur for his volume of poetry entitled "Things of This World." Wilbur is associated professor of English at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn.

—Kenneth Roberts, of Kennebunk, Me., a special award for "his historical novels which have long contributed to the creation of greater interest in our early American history."

—Norman Dello Joio, Wilton, Conn., composer of his "Meditations On Ecclesiastes," first performed at the New York School of Music in April of last year. Dello Joio was the composer of "The Trial At Rouen," an opera about Joan of Arc performed over NBC-TV last April 8.

Child Killed By Tombstone

EAST BERLIN, Pa. (UP)—The 5-year-old daughter of a cemetery caretaker will be buried Thursday in the cemetery where she was fatally injured by a falling tombstone.

The youngster, Cathleen A. Lighty, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Lighty, East Berlin RD 1, died enroute to the office of a physician Monday of internal injuries and shock.

Her father, an assistant caretaker in the cemetery which adjoins St. Paul's Union Church, said his daughter accompanied him when he went to cut grass in a nearby plot. He heard her cry for help and found her beneath a tombstone that toppled on her.

Open Meetings Bill Amended

HARRISBURG (UP)—A drastically amended version of state Senate legislation to require agencies to hold open meetings moved to the floor of the House of Representatives today.

The bill was amended in the House Municipal Corporation Committee Monday to exclude all state agencies from the intent of the legislation. The original bill specified that all meetings of agencies, commissions and authorities of the state and its subdivisions would be open.

The open meetings bill joined a companion measure on the House work calendar to require open records in all agencies where law, ordinance or resolution does not prohibit public inspection. Both bills were strongly endorsed by the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers' Association in its drive to prevent 'secrecy" in government.

PNPA General Manager G.Richard Dew said the amended open meetings bill "does an incomplete and unsatisfactory job." Dew said the bill would allow state agencies to remain behind closed doors while opening the doors to meetings on the municipal level.

House Republican Whip Allen M. Gibson (Warren) said the Republican caucus decided to give the 126 member delegation a "free hand" in voting on the two bills.

The School Budget Needs a Combing

MONESSEN's school directors are about to impose an unusually large tax increase of three mills on the homes, businesses and industries of the community. They are also in the process of adding another $275,000 to the school district's indebtedness in order partly, as we are informed, to finance some expenditures which were made outside the regular budget.

It seems to us that before the directors throw these heavy new burdens on the people, they have an obligation to do the most thorough possible job of combing the new budget with a view to eliminating waste and inefficiency. And after examining the preliminary estimates, we are not at all sure that that kind of job has been done.

The Daily Independent recognizes that by far the largest item of expense is the payroll. Of the total estimated expenditures of $1,122,083 for next year, $736,480 is earmarked for "instructional services".

We think the public generally supports the idea that teachers' salaries should be increased. So about all that can be done with this phase of the budget is to make sure that the district has the teachers it needs and that they are assigned in such a way as to make economical use of their services.

* * *

BUT EVEN a casual examination of the budget will, we think, disclose a number of places at which the directors should take another close look before giving the budget their final approval on May 28. We will mention several that occur to us.

The board has been paying one of its members $100 a month to serve as its secretary. But the actual work is done by staff clerks, one of whom is designated "board meeting secretary", and the secretary does nothing but sign his name. This $1,200 appropriation, then, is nothing but a little sinecure which the directors pass around among themselves. It could be eliminated.

The budget provides funds to send the superintendent to seven different conferences, conventions and workshops during the year at a total cost of $825. We know the education profession is a great one for meetings and conventions, but this seems to us to be overdoing it.

The budget includes a total of $37,400 for the salaries of supervisors and specialists of various kinds. Another $1,000 is added for their expenses. We believe the board should take a close look at all of these and make sure every one is justified in the light of the district's present financial condition.

We count a total of $14,875 in the budget for extra-duty pay to teachers for athletic coaching and "other assignments". Teachers' salaries have increased substantially since the extra-duty pay scale was established. It should be reexamined in detail. Anyway, is it not inconsistent for teachers to insist upon being treated as "professional" people and then demand to be paid like piece-workers?

This year's budget provides $7,380 for transportation of pupils, but the same item proposed for next year is $13,500, nearly double. Is this increase warranted and does it not justify consideration of the possibility of the district providing its own transportation facilities instead of hauling pupils under contract with private parties?

The new budget provides $11,000 for "social centers and recreation". Here again we think some careful consideration is in order. Frills which we thought we could afford yesterday are apt to become expendable when taxes have to be increased substantially.

* * *

OUR PURPOSE here is not to substitute our judgement for that of the responsible school authorities. Nor would we have our readers think we favor anything for Monessen but a school system that can rank with the best.

But we think our people are entitled to every assurance at this time that their tax dollars are being used wisely and economically. And this is all the more true in view of the rather awkward way in which the school district's finances have been managed.

We hope the school directors will sharpen their pencils and go to work on the budget once more. If they will we firmly believe they can find many places where savings can be made without appreciably diminishing the educational opportunities available to the children of Monessen.

From Washington—

What Is Lesson of 'McCarthyism'?

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Is there any appraisal of Sen. Joseph R McCarthy which can find an inch of common ground between his earnest and ardent supporters and his earnest and ardent critics?

Mr. Drummond

The difficulty comes largely from the fact that neither side could rarely, if ever, see an iota of virtue or validity in the other and more often than not there was a total questioning of motives.

Senator McCarthy's loyal supporters construed any criticism of Mr McCarthy as proof positive — as instant and complete proof in itself — that the critic was pro-Communist.

Senator McCarthy's sincere opponents believed that the Senator threw such massive accusations against anybody and everybody that they considered that Mr. McCarthy was a greater danger to the precious protections of a free society than he was to Communism itself.

Obsessed on Communism

What, I ask myself, is the fairest statement that can be made of the Senator's position? It seems to me it is this:

That Mr. McCarthy was so totally and psychologically centered on the one instrument of danger to the United States — that of Communist infiltration — that he was prepared to do damage to any person, to any group or to any civil liberty which stood in the way of fighting Communism the way he thought it should be fought and wanted to fight it.

He was certainly not politically timid. He thrust out at President Truman when Mr. Truman was an easy target. He thrust out at President Eisenhower when Mr. Eisenhower was a formidable target. He called them both in one of his most familiar phrases "soft on communism." In 1952 he repeatedly referred to the Democratic presidential nominee as "Alger, I mean Adlai Stevenson." It seems to me that one of Senator McCarthy's greatest unfairnesses was his inability or unwillingness to concede loyal, patriotic, honest differences of opinion among his fellow Americans over the question of what is the best and most effective means of dealing with the Communist conspiracy — and an evil conspiracy it is.

Critics Disloyal

To Mr. McCarthy the very idea that there could be desirable, effective and, in the judgment of others, even more useful means of fighting Communism than the Senator's, seemed, per se, to be disloyal, unpatriotic and dishonest.

Though not the first to speak out, Senator McCarthy knew that Communism was a peril to our Democratic way of life, poison to all the freedoms without which democracy cannot live and flower.

So did most of his critics.

The difference was this:

Mr McCarthy was intent upon fighting Communism at whatever damage to our democratic freedoms and protections which got in the way of his fight.

Senator McCarthy's critics were intent upon resisting and exposing every possible assault on our Democratic way of life, poison to democratic freedoms, including the assault of Communism.

Respect Each Other

It seems to me that we come to the heart of the lesson we can ponder in connection with the regrettable passing of Senator McCarthy.

The American people are overwhelmingly united in their alertness and opposition to Communism.

To assume that one American, who sincerely disagrees with another over how best to fight Communism is thereby pro-Communist, serves to divide the nation and weaken the fight on Communism.

I happen to believe that it is possible to be an implacable opponent of the Communists and to be reasonable in defense of our most precious democratic freedoms to secure which is a prime purpose of fighting Communism.

I guess what I'm saying is Let's have faith in and respect for each other.

Merry-Go-Round—

McCarthy Wanted to Die

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Joe McCarthy telephoned me some days before he died. He and I had not conversed since I found myself looking into his face, arms pinned to side, in the men's cloakroom of the Sulgrave Club. We were separated by the Vice President of the United States.

Mr. Pearson

Seven years had passed. Suddenly I picked up the telephone to hear a cheery voice as if nothing had ever happened.

"Drew," said the voice, "this is Joe McCarthy. Are you sitting down?"

"Yes," I replied, also as if nothing had ever happened.

"I wanted to make sure you were sitting down, because if you were standing up you would faint," continued Joe. "I've just put your column in the Congressional Record.

"I haven't always agreed with your column," he said, "but in this case I'm sure it's completely accurate, and I wanted to tell you in advance what I'd done so you wouldn't faint."

The column pertained to the doublecross given Israel regarding her withdrawal from the Gaza Strip and the Gulf of Aqaba. Just a short time before, Joe had led a Senate fight to keep a filmed TV report of mine on Israel from being shown in the Senate caucus room That was how perverse he could be.

Joe Was Lonely

I suppose no one newspaperman suffered more economically than I did from Joe McCarthy. But I felt sorry for Joe in these latter years. He had been so famous once. He was so lonely lately. He used to walk through the halls of Congress, a sheaf of handouts under his arm, offering them to newspapermen, offering to pose before the TV cameras. But his press handouts hit the wastepaper baskets and his face didn't appear on TV any more.

Once the cameramen had lined up outside his office clamoring for "one more shot." Press associations dogged his footsteps, worked in shifts, never let him walk down a corridor alone.

But now he walked alone.

That was what killed Joe.

Fame is a cruel thing It can lift you up to the mountain tops. It can forget you at the bottom. It can exhilarate you with seeing your name in headlines. It can leave you crushed and wondering why you are all alone.

Joe's Friends Forgot

In Joe's case he was forgotten by the alleged friends who saw the political importance of pinning the Communist label on a Democratic administration.

It was not Father Edmund Walsh who was really responsible for taking Joe up on the mountain top. True, he first planted the idea in Joe's mind, first told him that the man who focused on Communists in the State Department would become a national hero. My attorney, Bill Roberts, was present when Father Walsh and Joe first talked.

But the subsequent, absurd idea that there were "205 card-carrying Communists known to the Secretary of State" would have remained an absurd idea if certain politicians and certain publishers hadn't seen this as a heaven-sent chance to pin the Communist label of Dean Acheson, thus pull down 20 years of Democratic rule.

Suppose he finds only one Communist in the State Department," said Bob Taft, who never lifted a finger to stop Joe's witch-hunting.

"Suppose he finds only one Communist in the State Department. He found some in other walks of life. But the one alleged Communist in the State Department, Val Lorwin, indicted for denying he was a Communist, was excused by none other than Attorney General Brownell with an apology from the court.

Why Joe Got Ill

Joe could have enjoyed fame much longer if he had not made the mistake of turning on the man he helped put in the White House. When he did that, he lost newspaper support. The big publishers who once gave him headlines suddenly gave their hero no more headlines. He was attacking Ike, Ike's army, Ike's foreign policy, Ike and Dulles, he said, were soft on Communism.

So Joe got the silent treatment, and that was what really killed him.

The exhilarating stimulus of the crowds, of the headlines, of the Kleig lights ruined Joe's effectiveness in his earlier days. The exhilarating stimulus of alcohol ruined his effectiveness in recent days.

These last three weeks, he had been on a literal whisky diet. He had been on it before and gone to the hospital — three times in nine months. Once he had kicked a hospital corpsman, had been kept "in restraints," had sometimes been out of his mind.

Perhaps he was haunted by the Annie Lee Mosses, the Val Lorwins, the John Services, and John Carter Vincents. Perhaps he saw them as he lay on his hospital bed crying out in the night.

They would have been justified if they had come to haunt him. I know something of the ridicule, the abuse, the anonymous letters, the scathing phone calls, the falling away of sponsors that can come when a Senator takes the privileged floor of the United States Senate to call you a Communist.

But I for one am sorry Joe died when he did. Toward the end he had begun to revert to the McCarthy he was when he first came to Washington. Toward the end he also wrote me a letter retracting that I was ever pro-Communist. Toward the end, he had started to vote once again for little business, for the farmer, for little people. He had begun to champion little Israel. He was about to adopt another baby.

Most important of all, he had begun to make peace with his Maker.

I'm afraid Joe wanted to die. He would not have stuck to his diet of whisky had he wanted to live. Had he lived, had he forgotten the heady wine of headlines, had he been content to be just another Senator, he might have undone the harm he did and become a Senator who truly deserved fame.

Gomulka Holding Well As Poland's New Leader

By CHARLES M. McCANN

Wladyslaw Gomulka, who led Poland's successful revolt against Soviet Russian domination, is facing a new test of his strength.

The Central Committee of the Polish Communist Party—officially, the United Workers Party, is to meet Thursday.

Mr. McCann

Warsaw dispatches report that the faction of the party which opposes Gomulka's independent policy will make a determined bid to check any further trend toward liberalized rule.

To this end, they will fight especially to get Deputy Premier Zenon Nowak back on the Central Committee, from which he was ousted last October.

If they succeed, Gomulka's task in preserving Poland's independence of Moscow domination will be made even more difficult.

Had Been Imprisoned

Gomulka was restored to his post of first secretary of the Communist Party at the time of the Polish revolt in October, after having been imprisoned as a "Titoist" — one who, like President Tito of Yugoslavia, refused to knuckle under to the Russians.

Ever since his restoration, Gomulka has been beset by problems which might have overwhelmed a weaker man.

He has had to contend with a serious economic situation.

All the time, the "Stalinists" who remain in the Polish Communist Party have been fighting stubbornly against what has become a steady, if gradual, trend toward liberalization.

For the present, Gomulka's position seems safe. The best the "Stalinists" can hope for is to make a comeback which will permit them to stop this trend.

Had it not been for a singular line-up of support, it is doubtful whether Gomulka would have lasted this long.

On one hand, Gomulka has had the backing of President Tito and especially of Mao Tse-Tung and Chou En-lai, the big two Chinese Communist leaders.

On the other, Gomulka has had the support of the Roman Catholic Church in Poland. Stefan Cardinal Wyszynsky, the Catholic primate, urged voters to support Gomulka in the election held last January.

To Visit Pope

As evidence of Poland's liberalized rule, Wyszynsky has been given permission to visit Pope Pius XII and is due to go to Vatican City this week.

Gomulka will get one big boost in September. Mao Tse-Tung, who seldom leaves Red China, is to visit Poland as well as Russia in September.

There seems to be a strong feeling in Warsaw that if Russia has any thought of trying to oust Gomulka, either directly or through the Polish "Stalinists," Mao will discourage it.

Gomulka may get his biggest boost soon, however, from the United States. Washington dispatches say that an agreement under which Poland will get about 100 million dollars in aid may be signed at any time. That will ease Poland's economic plight at least, and the economic situation is Gomulka's biggest handicap

The Lighter Side—

There Is Only One Best Center Fielder

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UP)—I don't think Americans are afraid to express opinions, take stands, go out on limbs, oppose the prevailing trend of thought, or get out of the conformity rut Far from it.

It's not fear they suffer from. It's just plain cussedness of the brain. Once John Q. gets something through his thick skull, he seems to believe the idea is a fundamental secret of the universe.

And woe betide the person who dares to raise a doubt. The old quote attributed to Voltaire, "I wholly disagree with what you say and will defend to the death your right to say it," is more likely to become, in U.S. Main Street argument: "I disagree with what you say, and shut up, you oaf."

A Frontier Heritage?

Perhaps the lack of mental receptivity to alien ideas comes from the frontier heritage. This country grew up with a moving frontier. The approved method of survival on a frontier is to advance your own ideas and be skittish about accepting those advanced by hostile Indians, tigers, mama grizzly bears, and other free thinkers.

But whatever causes it, I'm getting sick and tired of it. I speak specifically of the issue of center field. Every right-thinking, magenta-blooded American with an ounce of brains in his cranium knows there is only one center fielder. It should not be necessary to utter the name — Willie Mays. But it becomes necessary on occasion.

Just Monday when the issue of who is the greatest center fielder in baseball arose in our office, a native of Brooklyn spoke up.

A Snider Fan

"Duke Snider," he said, almost automatically.

"Mays!" I hollered.

"Shaddup!" he argued.

See what I mean? There's no use trying to reason with such a guy. But I tried

"Snider," I reasoned softly, "is a bum."

"Throws better, hits better, plays his position better, knows the batters better, thinks straighter, doesn't grandstand," yelled the Brooklyn man "Mays will come in on a ball, misjudging it, and then have to lunge back at full speed, and he makes it look spectacular because he just ain't in the same league with . . ."

He had to break off there because a metal wastebasket tapped him smartly across the skull. I felt it was my duty. At this time of the year, it behooves us to deal sternly with people who suffer from closed minds.

Anybody else wanta argue about Willie Mays?

Raps City Hall 'Bosses'

To the Editor:

In reply to Mr. Rapsak's (William Rapsack, chairman of the Monessen Democratic Committee) letter concerning the endorsement of candidates by the Democratic Committee:

He failed to mention the rules and duties of the committee for a free primary election in third class cities.

The committee is elected by the people every four years in their individual precincts and are to work for the good of the party, not for a few bosses that hold it back in City Hall.

During free primary elections in Monessen and other cities, the committee is not permitted, under any condition, to recommend or endorse any particular candidate.

After the primary election when the people have chosen their candidates for public office, then the committee is supposed to go to work to support the Democratic candidates against the opposing candidates.

If there is no Republican candidate, which is true in this city election, then the Democratic committee is supposed to be neutral. Who are they to judge who is the best candidate?

We are all Democrats and supposed to be working for a common cause, the advancement of the City of Monessen Under the present conditions, how can our community advance with whip-wielding bosses at City Hall who are leading us back to medieval days when the lords ruled the land.

They are also underestimating the intelligence of the free-thinking people of Monessen.

A Democrat

At the White House—

Ike and McCarthy

By MERRIMAN SMITH

WASHINGTON (UP) — Backstairs at the White House:

When news of the death of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy broke late Thursday, a member of the White House shook his head and remarked: "Brother, am I glad that I don't have to write the statement of condolence on that one."

The mutual antipathy between President Eisenhower and his wife and the McCarthys was never more evident than during the recent White House social season.

The McCarthys were deliberately left off the invitation list for a government reception, but all other senators were invited. Mrs. McCarthy, later was invited to a White House reception, but sent her regrets.

Some people thought the White House snub of the McCarthys was carrying political differences a bit too far, but the White House apparently felt it was justified because of some of the senator's biting remarks about Eisenhower.

Thus it was difficult Thursday night figuring out how the President could say anything without having his words seem insincere. He ended up by sending a simple note to McCarthy's widow saying Mrs. Ike joined him in extending sympathy.

Thomas E Stephens, political man-of-all-trades for the President and the GOP national organization, has moved out of his White House offices and set up a private law office here.

This does not mean he is out of politics. His counsel still is sought on a daily basis and the tempo of his now fairly light political activity undoubtedly will step up during the congressional campaigns next year.

Rostraver May Have Started Something

When Rostraver officials decided to "confiscate" the jackets of their Junior High athletes last week, they may have touched off a "chain reaction" which will rock the entire WPIAL. It's quite possible a majority of schoolboy athletes in western Pennsylvania will find themselves ineligible in the future unless someone does some fast talking. In effect, the Junior WPIAL — with PIAA blessing — has questioned the eligibility of every athlete who has received an award of any sort valued at more than $2 for his Junior High exploits. Since the practice of making awards to Junior High players is not uncommon, that means quite a few boys will be ineligible next season.

* * *

At least one valley school presents Junior High jackets every season. Awards for the past campaign have already been made. Thus if someone files a protest, the high school will find itself without a single athlete next season! . . . In the past, every school in the Big Six has made an award of some sort to its Junior High boys. Consequently just about every title won in recent years will have to be vacated if we carry this thing to its logical conclusion . . . One Junior High official has admitted that "there will be a pretty mess if the schools start protesting." Happily, the Junior WPIAL and the WPIAL will will not act unless protests are filed. Since everybody seems to be guilty maybe there will be no protesting.

* * *

Youngsters Are Victims of Comedy

The victims of the current comedy — and it's really a comedy — are the Rostraver Junior High athletes and their principal James O. Leeper. The story making the rounds, and there seems to be pretty strong support behind it, is that individuals within the Rostraver system engineered the whole probe to embarrass Leeper. Another rumor has it that a couple of coaches at the senior high were disgruntled because they received NO jackets. These reports seem to have some basis in fact. The Rostraver school board might be wise looking into them. Certainly the whole mess merits the attention of the Board of Education. A School Board meeting is scheduled tonight and some probing questions should be asked by the Directors.

* * *

Oddly enough, the PIAA rule which specifically forbids Junior High boys from receiving jackets to Junior High boys was not wise, but reporter reads all scholastic rules which reach this desk, but we somehow overlooked that one. We called several Junior WPIAL principals and officials in the district and not one was aware of the rule. Even William Dolde, the popular WPIAL president, admitted quite frankly he had never heard of the rule before. All of these gentlemen agreed that the policy of awarding jackets to JJunior High boys was not wise, but they felt the awards were "legal" if not made by the schools. This is NOT the case, according to PIAA authorities.

* * *

What's to Become of Jackets?

What's to become of the Rostraver jackets? That's a question nobody has an answer for at the moment. Some of the boys want their jackets back, pointing out that they have no intention of going out for varsity sports. "I'm too small for high school sports and I know it, so what's the harm in giving me my jacket," asks one boy. "If we took this to court, we could force them to give back the jackets," bristles one angry father . . . Caught in the middle is Rostraver Junior High principal James O. Leeper. He has to be held responsible for not knowing the rule, even though few, if any contemporaries, were aware of it. At the same time, those individuals who instigated the whole thing should be brought to task, too. Otherwise Rostraver might as well forget about its varsity sports program for the next few years.

MHS Netters Sweep Again

Turn Back Mon City 5 to 0

Coach Antoinette Valentine's Monessen High tennis team romped to its fourth straight win of the season yesterday, turning back Monongahela, 5-0, at the City Park courts.

Joe Kurey, Jim Baker and Dennis D'Alessio all scored easy singles wins.

Kurey and Baker then paired for one doubles triumph, while D'Alessio and his pal Ron D'Angelo scored another to complete the sweep.

Kurey took Joe Hughes, 6-0 and 6-0, without a scare.

Doubtful Starts

Baker, who was a doubtful starter when he reported to school ill, managed to beat Mickey Ferrari just the same, 6-3 and 6-1. D'Alessio handed Sam Marra, 6-0 and 6-2.

Neither of the doubles matches was close.

Monessen's next assignment will be at Charleroi on Friday. A win in that contest will assure the MHS netters at least a tie in the final Section 4 standings.

Yesterday's summary follows:

Monessen 5, Monongahela 0

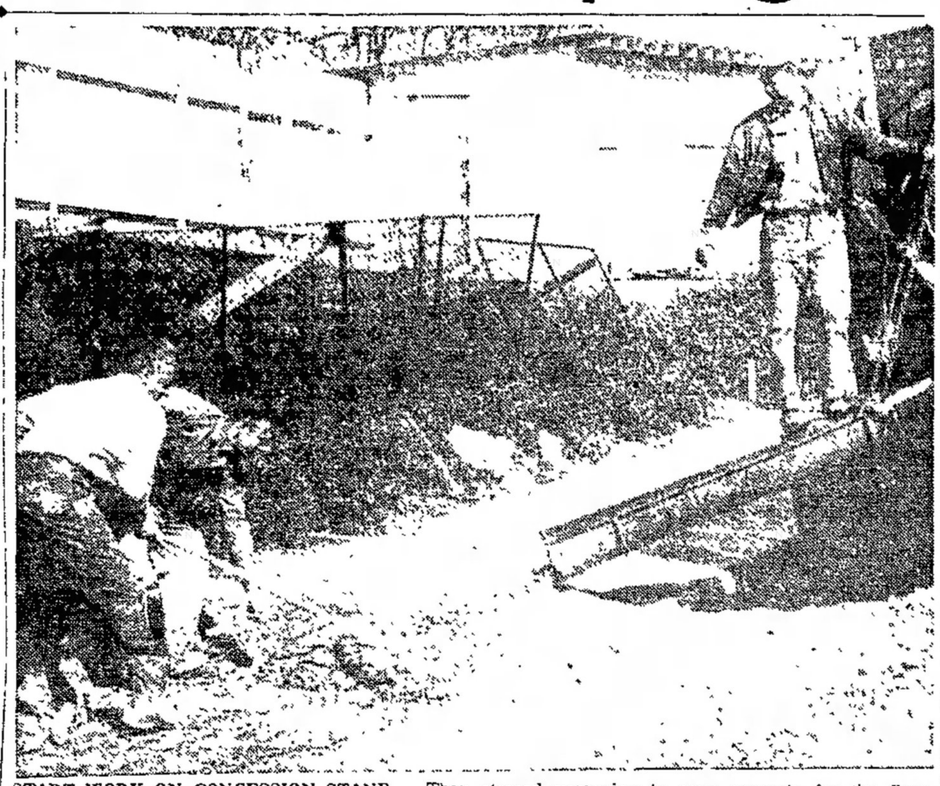
Kurey, Monessen, over Hugnes, 6-0 and 6-0.

Baker, Monessen, over Ferrari, 6-3 and 6-1.

D'Alessio, Monessen over Marra, 6-0 and 6-1.

Kurey and Baker, Monessen, over Hughes and Swanson, 6-1 and 6-2

D'Alessio and D'Angelo, Monessen, over Maley and Marra, 6-1 and 6-1.



START WORK ON CONCESSION STAND — They started yesterday to pour concrete for the floor of the Midget Football League concession stand in Memorial Stadium. Pictured above are contractor Frank Talerico and MFL coach Earl Cruzan working the concrete as an unidentified driver looks on. All labor for the 90 foot stand is being donated. League officials predict revenue from concession privileges will completely finance the program in the future.

Four Little League Nines Get New Togs

Four of the city's Little League baseball teams will have new uniforms this season.

Don Skekel, vice-president of the LL, announced today that uniforms have arrived for the Elks, CIO, Lions and Ravens.

"We've asked each of the sponsoring organization, to contribute $100 to help cover the cost of the uniforms," Skekel said. "The rest of the money will be taken from the league treasury."

Those four teams competed no less than four seasons in their original outfits.

"The uniforms held up fine, but they just couldn't take another season," said Skekel. Originally the four sponsors had shelled out $50 to get the league going.

Same Outfits

The other four teams in the Monessen organization — American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Page Local and Park Service — will compete again in the togs they've worn for the past three years. They are slated to get new outfits in 1958.

Little League officials also announced one managerial change for this season. Delbert Hughes will replace the resigned John Kachmarik as head man of the Lions.

Otherwise the same men will be back to pilot their teams. They include Alex Karenchak, CIO; Alex Kachmarik, Ravens; Don Skekel, Elks; George Bonari, VFW; Bill Hughes, Park Service; Leonard Cook, Page Local, and Mack Kotys, American Legion.

The American League, comprised of VFW, Ravens, Park Service and Page Local, plans to play its games this year at the newly-developed Shawnee diamond.

NL Teams

The National League made up of CIO, Lions, Elks and Legion, will stay at Memorial Stadium.

Once again the League hopes to finance its 1957 operations through a tag day. On May 18, city boosters will be asked to chip in to support the program for boys between the ages of 10 and 12.

Complete plans for the upcoming season will be formulated in the near future. The third and final tryout session will be held this Saturday. Following that Player Agent John Barton will summon a draft meeting.

Charleroi Nips Bellmar, 4 to 1, In Section 17

Charleroi High moved closer to the Section 17 baseball title yesterday by turning back a good Bellmar team, 4-1.

The Canes battled all the way against the undefeated home team. However Carl Witmyer, Charleroi's superb pitcher, was just too tough.

This time Witmyer fashioned a three hitter. He had a shutout going until the sixth when the Canes finally managed to score a tally.

John Lenhart paced the winners with two singles and a double. Tom Delsandro chipped in with a three bagger.

Conrad Lupori toiled on the hill for the losers. He pitched a pretty good game, except for the fifth inning when the home team nicked him for three runs.

Charleroi now has a 7-0 record for the season. The Cougars need just one more win to assure a tie in the final Section 17 standings.

Patterson May Fight in London

NEW YORK (UP) — Floyd Patterson plans a defense of the heavyweight crown at London this year because of his manager's bitter feud with the International Boxing Club.

"Whether it will be a June or September defense we do not know yet," manager Cus D'Amato said today. "But I intend Floyd to defend for promoter Harry Levine at London some time this year."

He said there's a possibility 22-year-old Floyd may risk his title for the first time somewhere in the United States "for an independent promoter" and make his second at London — "or vice-versa."

D'Amato, torridly critical of Jim Norris and his IBC, declared: "One thing is certain Patterson will not fight for the IBC under any circumstances."

Archery Bill Reaches Senate

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Senate today received House-amended legislation to allow archers to hunt deer during special open seasons without obtaining an antlerless deer license.

The House removed a Senate provision that a regular open season for bow and arrow sportsmen would be held, leaving the season up to the discretion of the state Game Commission.

The bill was sponsored by Sens. James S. Berger (R-Potter), Robert D. Fleming (R-Allegheny) and Frank W. Ruth (D-Berks) and amended in the House by Rep. George A. Goodling (R-York). It was passed in the House 186-1 with Rep. John H. Devlin (D-Allegheny) the lone dissenter.

MacPhail in Hospital Again

NEW YORK (UP)—The condition of Larry MacPhail, former major league baseball executive, was listed as "satisfactory" today at New York Hospital, where he has been under observation since last week.

MacPhail entered the hospital after suffering a recurrence of an intestinal attack. A similar seizure hospitalized him last December.

After selling his stock in the New York Yankees in 1947, MacPhail served briefly as managing director of the Bowie race track. In recent years, he has been a successful breeder of thoroughbred horses at his Glen Angus Farm near Belair, Md.

Mitnick Fans 14 In Easy 5-0 Win In Valley League

Bill Mitnick got the Monessen Ozarks off to a good start in Mon Valley League action yesterday by stopping host Donora, 5-1, on three hits.

The lanky Mitnick fanned 14 batters and walked just one. He missed his shutout when Ken Barbao homered in the fifth inning.

Barbao also doubled against Mitnick. The only other Donora to collect a safety was Mel Mills. For the most part, the Donorans went up and down in order.

The big gun, offensively, for Monessen was Ron Danko who slammed a home run and single.

The game was scoreless until the third inning when Danko singled and Bob Mastracci doubled him home. In the fifth inning, Danko slammed his home run into right center.

Barbao Homers

Barbao came back in the same frame with a four-bagger over the left field fence to make it close.

In the seventh, Monessen wrapped things up with a three run outburst. Mitnick opened with a triple and tagged up on Danko's long fly.

Tom Rotheram singled and moved to second on a wild pitch. Mastracci singled him home and Pappy Johnson doubled in the final tally of the inning.

Mitnick fanned every player to face him at least once during the game.

Clemente Claims He Never Drops Flies

By JOHN CARROLL

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Outfielder Roberto Clemente of the Pittsburgh Pirates claimed a perfect record today. He says he hasn't dropped a fly ball since he started using the "basket" catch usually associated with Willie Mays of the Giants.

"No, I don't learn the basket catch from Mays," Roberto protested in his marked Puerto Rican accent. "It was Jose he pronounced it Hoo-say' O'Dino and Herman Franks (the former Giant coach) who teach me when I in Dodger chain. That back in 1954 winter league.

"Before that, I miss fly ball many time 'cause I try to catch too high," he explained. "But now I no drop one ball since I use basket catch."

Clemente said Olmo and Franks instructed him to catch the ball about chest high instead of holding his hands outstretched. Later, he said, it became more natural for him to drop his hands even lower below his waistline.

"It work good for me and I 'suss' keep doing it," he said. "It make it more easy for me to throw too, after I make catch."

Easy Motion

The National League's third-leading batter in 1956 (with a .311 average) demonstrated his point in a recent game at Forbes Field by hauling in a fly ball in deep right field and throwing to third or equivalent player material to base in one easy motion. The throw just missed getting the baserunner who had tagged up and advanced from second.

"Juss' a li'l bit lower an' I have 'nat guy. Next time I get him," Roberto promised.

The fragile looking 175-pounder recalled one time when he literally "booted one."

"I run for fly ball, but it drop too fast. When I stoop to catch, I kick with foot. Funny thing. How you say? Juss' like kick field goal," he laughed. "Muss' be whole in basket."

Actually, he claimed he didn't have a chance to use the basket catch on that one because the ball was too low.

"So my perfect record still good No?" He asked whimsically.

Great Speed

Possessed of great speed afoot, a keen batting eye and one of the best throwing arms in the majors, Clemente recently was paid high tribute by his manager, Bobby Bragan.

Said the Bue pilot: "He's worth every penny of a half-million dollars to me. That's what the other guys would have to give in cash or players to get him."

Denies Wilt to Turn Professional

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UP) — Retired University of Kansas basketball coach Dr. Forrest C. (Phog) Allen denied today that he ever said Kansas' seven - foot center Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain would "definitely" turn professional.

Allen said he didn't refer to Chamberlain "in any shape or form" during a speech at Buffalo, N.Y., Monday. He accused reporters of "twisting the facts."

The 71-year-old retired coach said that he discussed Chamberlain and Kansas University "in general" during a "bull session" Monday. During the session, he said, someone asked if he thought Chamberlain would be back next year. Allen said he told the group "I don't know, but I think not."

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF

How So Bad?

"How," asked the wild-eyed man at the end locker, "could I get so bad from one week to the next? Last Saturday I had 82 and was only off the fairway twice. Today I shot 94 and had to hole a pretty good putt on the last hole to get that."

What he should have done was be very careful about ball placement. If consistency is to be achieved, placement can't be ignored.

For the drive, the ball should be positioned on a line with the inside of the left heel. For the fairway woods, change the positioning to about an inch nearer the center of the feet. Back another two inches for the long irons. For the four and five irons, an inch to the left of center of the feet. The six iron position will be about dead center. For the seven, eight, nine and pitching irons, move back a half inch for each as the club number goes up.

These are standard positions. If you are a natural slicer, you may need to position the ball say an inch farther forward than I do. And if you are a hooker, an inch farther back. But in any event, check positioning before you start your swing. It only takes a second. And you have my guarantee that it will make you more consistent.

City Softballers Prepare for Race

Six Teams Have Definitely Entered Upcoming Campaign

Plans for the upcoming City Softball League were just about completed last night during a meeting in the Ravens Club.

There's just one hitch. League officials still aren't sure how many teams will compet.

Six clubs were represented at last night's meeting and they made it plain that they intended to take part in the 1957 fun. Included were the Cro-Ams, Ravens, ULBA, MPSA, Italian Hall and Myfords.

Considered "doubtful starters" are the Ozarks and PNA.

The league will give those teams until Thursday to make up theor mind. That's when the final organization meeting will be held in the Ravens Club beginning at 8 p. m.

Attending last night's meeting were John DiBiaso, Ralph Trilli and John Lipnicky, representatives of the city's softball umpires association.

League officials hopet o have at least an opening day scheduld ready following Thursday's meeting.

Softball Teams Practice Tonight

Three City Softball League teams have announced practice sessions for tonight or tomorrow.

Both the Myfords and Italian Hall will work out this evening.

Managers Don Shrader and Tony Turcaso reported that the Myfords will drill at City Park beginning at 5:30 p. m.

According to manager Steve Hardoby, Italian Hall will practice tonight and Thursday at City Park beginning at 5:45 p. m.

The ULBA team will begin drills tomorrow at City Park starting at 6 p. m., according to manager Chick Lewitsky.

All teams have invited interested candidates to take part in the workouts.

Donora Whacks MHS Nine by 13 to 3 Score

Monessen High's baseballers scored three runs their first time at bat but host Donora came right back to pound out a 13-3 victory in Section 17 play yesterday.

The loss was the seventh in a row for the youthful Greyhounds who are picking up experience the hard way.

Chuck Guiffrida, Donora's freshman mound ace, held the Monessen boys to just four hits. Mike Kunsa made two and Carl Crawley the other pair.

Nine Monessen errors contributed to the Donora cause. The Dragons jumped on a pair of MHS hurlers for eleven hits, including a pair of doubles by Eloy Ramirez.

All of the Monessen scoring came in the first inning. Kunsa singled and moved to second on a fielders choice, Crawley singled him home and a couple of errors permitted two more runs to come across.

The game was reasonable, at least, until the sixth inning when the home team scored six runs on two hits and four errors.

Cimoli Leads Dodgers to 5-4 Win Over Braves in 14 Inning Tilt

By UNITED PRESS

Gino Cimoli, the "ugly duckling" of the National League champion Brooklyn Dodgers, is the latest example that sometimes the best trades in baseball are the ones that never are made.

A mere .111 hitter in 36 at-bats last season, Cimoli was the Dodgers' No. 1 trade bait all winter. They eventually kept him only because nobody else was interested.

Today, the 28-year-old native of San Francisco is batting .316, has driven in 10 runs, leads the team with 2 hits and is the hero of the Dodgers' 5-4 four-hour, 14-inning victory over the Braves Monday night. Cimoli broke it up with his fifth hit of the night, a solo homer off Red Murff to lead off the 14th frame and give Sandy Koufax his first win.

The Chicago Cubs whipped the New York Giants, 6-2, in the only other National League game Monday while the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Detroit Tigers, 8-6, in 13 innings and the Kansas City Athletics walloped the Washington Senators, 8-2, in American League games.

Brush Back Battle

At Ebbets Field umpire Lee Ballanfant called managers Walt Alston and Fred Haney to the mound to warn of a "bean ball" duel after starting pitchers Lew Burdette and Don Drysdale both were guilty of "dusters" in the first frame.

Ed Mathews homered in the first inning but Carl Furillo blasted a three-run homer in the bottom of the inning after singles by Cimoli and Sandy Amoros. Cimoli filled in center field for the injured Duke Snider with Amoros taking over in left field.

Mathews walloped another homer in the sixth inning and Joe Adcock blasted his sixth of the season in the eighth to produce a 3-3 tie. The Braves went ahead in the 12th on singles by Mathews and Andy Pafko followed by Johnny Logan's sacrifice fly but Cimoli doubled and scored the tying run on Furillo's single in the bottom of the inning.

Then came Gino's second homer—his first also broke up an extra inning game against Robin Roberts, April 16. The victory left the Dodgers only one game behind the front-running Braves.

Kaiser Beats Giants

Don Kaiser, 22-year-old speedballer, pitched a six-hitter to gain his first victory for the Cubs and help hand Ruben Gomez his first loss after three straight wins for the Giants. Ed Winceniak's two-run single was the key blow of the Cubs' four-run sixth-inning rally that broke open the game.

Jim Brideweser's first hit of the season, a double, drove in two runs in the 13th to give the Orioles their victory over the Tigers. The blow followed a double by Gus Triandos and an intentional walk to Dick Williams, providing relief pitcher George Zuverink with his second win. Bob Nieman homered for the Orioles.

Rookie Jim Pisoni's grand slam homer climaxed a six-run first inning rally and Ned Garver protected it for Kansas City the rest of the way with a neat six-hitter. Gus Zernial had sent the Athletics in front with a two-run single as the Athletics dealt Chuck Stobbs, a 15-game winner last season, his fifth straight loss.

Kluszewski Asks For Another Exam

CINCINNATI (UP) — Troubled Ted Kluszewski, practically resigned to being out for the remainder of the baseball season, wants doctors to have one more look at his aching back before undergoing surgery.

The big Cincinnati Redlegs first baseman was scheduled to leave the hospital today where he underwent tests for a week in order to find what was causing a pain in his left hip.

Doctors said Kluszewski was suffering from a slipped disc and recommended an operation. He tentatively agreed to surgery on condition the team of nine doctors who diagnosed his injury take another look.

Pirates, Cubs Meet Tonight

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates and the Chicago Cubs open a two-game series at Forbes Field here tonight in a battle to determine which team will leave the National League cellar.

Going into the series the bottom rung was shared by the two teams with identical 5-13 records.

The Pirates called upon Bob Friend (2-2) to provide the pitching they hoped would give them a victory in tonight's outing Friend will oppose the Cubs' Tom Poholsky (0-1).

The Pirates were idled yesterday while the Cubs defeated the Giants 6-2.

Tonight's game will mark the first appearance at Forbes' Field on first baseman Dale Long and outfielder Lee Walls since they were traded last week to the Cubs for Gene Baker and Dee Fondy.

Li'l Leaguer

Hart Easily Beats Wilson

NEW YORK (UP)—Young Garnet (Sugar) Hart, surfeited with victories over unranked welterweights, yelled a fight-offer of "winner take all" to four of the top 10 today.

The 21-year-old Philadelphian was somewhat miffed because he had to be content with a 9-1, 9-1, 9-1 decision over Al (Sugar) Wilson in their TV bout at St. Nicholas Arena Monday night, and he said, "he's the last unranked opponent I'll meet."

Hart and manager Marty Stein hurled the winner-take-all challenge at the three top contenders; Tony De Marco, Gaspar Ortega and Isaac Logart, and at ninth-ranking Walter Byars, who won an upset decision over Hart at Madison Square Garden, March 8.

Hart, favored at 5-1, handed a thorough trouncing to lanky, 31-year-old Wilson of Englewood, N.J.; but he couldn't flatten him. "He fought like a turtle," declared the irate Sugar, "all arms and elbows for protection. And he was just in there to last the distance."

Mon Yough Prep League to Meet

There will be a meeting of the Mon Yough Preop League tomorrow at 8 p. m. in the New Deal Restaurant, Belle Vernon.

Harold Ringstad, league president, said that schedule arrangements will be made. He said a representative from Scottdale will be present and urged all team managers to be on hand.

Senators May Drop Dressen

DETROIT (UP) — Calvin Griffith, president of the Washington Senators, was due in Detroit today to discuss a player-trade and-or the possible release of manager Charlie Dressen.

The Senators dropped their eighth straight game Monday at Kansas City and Griffith, en route here from Washington, was quoted as saying "something drastic has to be done."

The Washington Post and Times Herald said Monday night it had learned Griffith plans to dismiss Dressen and promote one of the team's coaches — Billy Jurges or Cookie Lavagetto — as temporary manager.

The Senators arrived here Monday night for the opening of a three-game series. However, neither Dressen or Griffith were available for comment. Johnny McHale, the Tigers' new general manager, said he planned to meet with Griffith for possible trade talks.

Sportsmen's Corner

'Coon' Hunting Is An Exciting Sport

The raccoon, or "coon," is classed as a game animal in Pennsylvania, but it is also a fur animal and is predacious to an extent.

Beginning with the days of the early settlers, the coon's pelt has been sought for its market value. But the low return for this fur for several years past caused the coon to be regarded principally for its value as a game animal. Many sportsmen enjoy hunting it with dogs for the excitement of the chase.

"Ringtail," who wears a black mask, may at times appear comical, but hunters and their trailers know he is a desperate fighter when cornered.

The low dollar value of the animal's pelt resulted in less trapping and contributed to the build-up of the coon population in this State. Wildlife people know that when any wild animal population shows an excessive increase nature will act to reduce the number, if man does not.

Accordingly, when coons became overly abundant a few years ago, the Game Commission relaxed restrictions on the taking of the animal, declaring it unprotected and allowing it to be shot or caught in unlimited numbers by licensed hunters and trappers the year around. In 1954 the estimated bag of coons in Pennsylvania was 102,000. In 1955 it was about 104,000, and in 1956 the take was over 129,000 by conservative calculation.

Fur Value Up

Recently, the value of raccoon pelts has increased sufficiently to make it worthwhile for farm boys and others to trap more of the animals. Last winter fur buyers quoted about $3 for a prime, large hide. This coupled with the reduced coon population in some sectors and increased hunting of the animal generally, suggests that the ringtail will gradually be brought within reasonable bounds, still allowing avid hunters of the animal plenty of sport.

As to the habits of the raccoon: Its home is preferably a hollow tree in or near a swamp or close to a stream or lake. This animal does not hibernate in the strict sense of the word. It "dens up" during stormy or extremely cold, winter weather.

The coon is an inquisitive animal which eats nearly everything, does not restrict its food to either a meat or vegetable diet. It relishes eggs, sometimes feeding on game bird eggs, but it eats many insects too. It is particularly fond of fish and crayfish, displaying considerable dexterity in capturing them with its forepaws. The coon may take corn and occasionally poultry, but its destruction of insects and mice probably more than compensates, in most cases, for damage caused on farms.

Good Winter . . .

Game Protectors in the state's Southcentral Division indicate that wildlife fared well there last winter. The following excerpts from their reports suggest conditions were better there than in most other areas.

"In some parts of my district there are more gray squirrels now than there were last season. They must have gathered in from other sections." Edward Campbell, Franklin County.

"In late weeks I have seen a lot of grouse, seemingly in good shape. There still are many grapes on the ground for their feed." John Dittmar, Bedford County.

"After the owner removed the straw covering a two-acre plot of pansies along the Raystown Branch of the Juniata River, the deer learned that the flowers are not only pretty, but tasty. A means of discouragement was devised to reduce the damage being caused." Richard Furry, Huntingdon County.

"Wildlife came through the winter in fine shape here. Squirrels, grouse, rabbits, quail and ringnecks are plentiful. Some farmers are complaining there are too many deer." Harold Russell, Perry County.

"During the latter part of March I noticed an increase of road-killed game. Rabbits and ringnecks topped the list." Raymond Holtzapple, Snyder County.

New Coordinator—

In line with the state Game Commission's continuing expansion of habitat improvement for wild waterfowl, Arthur G. Logue, former Supervisor of the Southcentral Division, has been reassigned to duty as Waterfowl Coordinator. His operations will be confined largely to the southern counties of Pennsylvania.

Logue's early years with the Commission were spent as a Game Protector in Cameron and Potter Counties, and he later served as a predator trapping instructor. His varied wildlife experience will be of considerable value in the performance of his new duties.

Deer Bests Auto—

Game Protector Mark Motter says that at least one Dauphin County deer has a rugged constitution. On March 27 he was informed a deer was killed by an auto traveling along Route 39 in West Hanover Township. The car was damaged and had to be towed away. The deer revived one-half hour after the collision and escaped to the woods.

College Students 'Capture' U. S. Carrier in Sydney

SYDNEY, Australia (UP)—Ten Sydney University students in pirate garb "captured" the U.S. carrier Bennington early today in a dawn prank that left American naval officers more embarrassed than amused.

Armed with cardboard cutlasses and carrying a skull and crossbones flag, the students rowed to the carrier's side, climbed the ladder and walked through the sleeping ship unchallenged. They found their way to her empty bridge and sounded the chemical warfare alarm.

Startled sailors tumbled from their bunks and the Bennington's 2,500 officers and men dashed to their stations.

The Sydney Mirror said the "pirates" held their ground against overwhelming odds on the ship's bridge before they were "arrested" by Marines and led off the ship.

Alger Hiss' Story of Trial Published Today

NEW YORK (UP)—Alger Hiss' own story of his trial and conviction is published today in a book which charges he was denied a fair trial from the moment of his first appearance before a congressional committee through his final judgment by the court of appeals.

The book, "In the Court of Public Opinion," reasserts Hiss' innocence both of Communist spy charges and of the perjury, in denying them, for which he spent three years and eight months in federal prison.

It is a step-by-step recounting of the case which began with charges against him by confessed spy Whittaker Chambers in 1948 and ended with the denial of his last appeal for a new trial 19 months before he was released from prison.

"I am confident now, as I have always been, of eventual vindication," Hiss said this week.

He said he understands that he may still seek a new trial under some circumstances and that his attorneys are pursuing "all leads possible to this end . . . as far as available money and manpower will permit."

But he was judged, he contends, in a court of unjustly inflamed public opinion and, as his book title indicates, it is to that court that he addresses his argument.

Honeymooners Are Told to Stay Right at Home

WASHINGTON (UP)—A timely tip for June brides and grooms: Have your honeymoon right in your own home.

Here are just some of the advantages listed by Dr. John R. Cavanagh, noted psychiatrist:

—Less chance of getting tired.
—Less chance of getting bored.
—It's cheaper, laddie.

Cavanagh, lecturer at Catholic and Georgetown universities, told a social hygiene society meeting Monday: "The best advice which can be given to most couples concerning the honeymoon is to spend it at home."

He said the honeymoon "may make or break a marriage."

But he said too often the groom arrives at the altar exhausted after a big bachelors party the previous night.

Moreover, he said the bride is probably just as exhausted from the weeks of preparation and parties before the wedding.

Cavanagh said then they rush off to "some uncomfortable and expensive hotel" and frequently it's all a "disappointing experience."

He said with both of them in the shape they are in it might be just as well for them to stay home and get a good night's sleep.

Then he said during the next few weeks they can get more accustomed to each other in a relaxed atmosphere.

May Fellowship Annual Dinner Held Thursday

The May Fellowship dinner of Fells and Webster Methodist churches and Fells Presbyterian Church was held Thursday at Fells Methodist Church. Over 40 persons were present.

Invocation was offered by the Rev. George Guest. The call to worship was by Mrs. Chester Brooks.

Following group singing, a responsive reading was given by Mrs. Everette Lynn, leader. Prayer was then offered by Mrs. Catherine Irwin after which Mrs. Donald Sarber sang "The Stranger of Gallilee".

Principal speaker was Mr. J. Nelson Jackaway, whose topic was "God's Love".

Following an offertory prayer by Mrs. Anna Van Ryn, the group sang "Walking in the Light" and "When His Love Comes In".

Following the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting by Mrs. Fred Reidel, the nominating committee presented the following list of officers:

Mrs. Fred Reidel, Webster Presbyterian Church, president; Mrs. George Naylor, Fells Methodist Church, vice-president, and Mrs. Elizabeth Hommey, of Webster Methodist Church, secretary-treasurer.

The nominating committee for the following year will be composed of Mrs. Dorothy Wenzel, of Webster Methodist Church, Mrs. Dorothy Byers, of Webster Presbyterian Church, and Mrs. Grace Porter, of Fells Methodist Church.

It was decided to hold next year's dinner on the first Thursday of May at the Webster Methodist Church.

The meeting closed with the group singing of "God Will Take Care of You".

Story of Defeat

NEW YORK (UP)—Sen. John Kennedy (D-Mass.) explained to the Overseas Press Club Monday night how he lost the 1956 Democratic vice presidential nomination. Selecting Jury for 'Mercy Killing' Trial

LEWISTOWN, Pa. (UP)—Completion of a jury was expected today in the "mercy killing" trial of Dr. Samuel L. Woodhouse Jr., 52, Milroy.

During a five hour session Monday three men were selected for jury duty while eight other veniremen were rejected. Completion of the full 12-man jury panel with two alternates was expected late today in the case to be heard before Mifflin County Judge Paul S. Lehman.

Dr. Woodhouse, who was recently released from Harrisburg State Hospital, was charged with the rifle slaying of his foster daughter, Elizabeth L. Woodhouse, 16, on Aug. 6, 1953, as the girl slept in her bedroom.

Police said the physician later worked in his garden, attacked a cocker spaniel with a hunting knife and treated two patients while the girl lay dead in the house.

Authorities said Woodhouse showed no remorse for the slaying which he reportedly said he planned for a year. They said he told them he killed the girl because she was ill and unhappy and because he was worried about financial responsibilities. The authorities also said Woodhouse told them he had planned to take his own life.

A peution for Woodhouse's release from the mental hospital, approved by Judge Lehman last Monday was signed by Dr. H. C. Eaton, hospital superintendent. Eaton said the physician has recovered his mental faculties.

Woodhouse was found on the floor of his home by his wife and her mother on their return home after the slaying. Police said the doctor had taken a quantity of drugs in an apparent suicide attempt.

Attorney Paul E. Fetterolf is defense counsel for Woodhouse. District Attorney R. Lee Ziegler of Mifflin County will present the Commonwealth's case.

Rankin Man Pleads Guilty

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Raymond Lawson, 5, Rankin bricklayer, pleaded guilty Monday to the fatal shooting of a Pittsburgh automobile salesman during an argument over the defendant's monthly car payments.

Lawson testified the argument with the victim, Jack Allison, 44, took place Dec. 11, 1956 when he went to Billy Conn's Big Three Motors to ask why the amount of his payments was apparently increased.

Lawson said he was told when he first purchased his automobile it would cost $46 per month. He said he later found out the payments would be $61.

Reporter Tells Story Of Budapest Revolt

NEW YORK (UP) — Russell Jones of the United Press, Pulitzer Prize winner in international reporting for his coverage of the Hungarian revolt, said today he stayed in embattled Budapest "because I thought that was the place for a reporter to be."

Jones got into the Hungarian capital on Oct 29, witnessed the crushing Russian assault of Nov. 4 and was the only American newspaperman remaining in Budapest from Nov. 11 until Dec. 6 when he was expelled.

Jones said in an interview that he felt telling the Hungarian story to the Western world was the most important opportunity he had ever had.

Minimizes Peril

"There was no great personal danger," he said. "The fighting in the city was confined mainly to isolated pockets and anyone could move around the other areas without much peril. The secret police and the Soviets were out to kill the Hungarian rebels, not Western reporters.

"Part of our profession is to cover the news. I didn't realize how important, how much impact, the story was having at the time, but it was obviously of tremendous significance. And from a human standpoint, that these people should be doing what they were doing.

"I stayed because I thought that was the place for a reporter to be."

To get his stories out, Jones telephoned U.P. bureaus around Europe — Stockholm, Vienna, Frankfurt, London, Paris, Belgrade, Prague and even Moscow. There was no censorship as such although the Russians cut off all communication from the outside from Nov. 4 to 11, the day a convoy of some 150 of other Western reporters departed.

Backs China Entry

Remaining with Jones as the only correspondents then were Endre Marton and Ilona Nyilas, the resident Hungarian correspondents of the Associated Press and the United Press, and the correspondents of Reuters and Agence France Presse.

Jones said he thought the story of the Hungarian revolution pointed up the vital need for Western correspondents to be on the scene wherever something is going on, "including Communist China."

Jones has now been transferred to U.P. Vienna headquarters with the assignment of chief roving reporter for Eastern Europe. He will return to that post shortly.

Workers Build Up Levees to Halt Flooding

SHREVEPORT, La. (UP) — Emergency workers labored throughout the night to build up levees protecting four Louisiana communities from the surging flood waters of the Red River.

The threat of the towns of East Point, Powhatan, Campti and Clarence—all south of Shreveport—constituted the final destructive effort of a series of floods that have pounded the Southwest since April 19, causing an estimated $57,500,000 damage.

The Red River's crest was expected this afternoon.

The river was spread three miles across lowlands in places. Around Powhatan, Campti and Clarence, 60,000 acres are under water. An estimated 100,000 acres are covered by floodwater in Louisiana now.

About 200 persons have left their homes in the Powhatan-Campti-Clarence area, and most of the 200 persons in East Point moved out their belongings over the week end.

Your Health—

Know What to Do When Twister Comes

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

You are never absolutely safe from a tornado no matter where you live.

While few twisters occur in the area west of the Rocky Mountains, and Nevada has had only one in the past 70 years, every state in the union has experienced them at one time or another. Texas, Iowa, Kansas, Mississippi and Oklahoma have had more than their share.

In fact, tornadoes take an average toll of about 232 lives each year.

Since I firmly believe that it's as much the duty of a doctor to prevent injuries as it is to treat them, I'd like to give you a few words of advice on how to protect yourself from harm during a tornado. This is especially timely, I think, because most tornadoes occur during May and June.

If you have a storm cellar, of course, you have little to worry about. I know of no one ever having been killed by a tornado while inside such a shelter.

If you don't have one, and few of you do, the safest place is in the basement of your home. Since twisters usually travel from the southwest to the northeast, the southwest corner of the cellar offers the most protection.

If your home has no basement, lie on the floor of the first story next to an inner wall. Outside walls are likely to be blown away by the unequal air pressure. Seek refuge under a bed or a heavy table if you can.

And if you have time, open all windows and doors in the house. Shut off the water, gas and electricity, too.

Generally, tornadoes occur between 3 and 6 p. m., so it's likely you may be out shopping if one strikes your area.

In that case, seek shelter on the first floor of a large building, preferably one with numerous partitions. Churches, halls and other large open structures offer relatively little protection.

Since tornadoes usually move between 25 and 40 miles per hour, you may be able to outrun or outdrive it if one bears down upon you in the open country.

Pittsburgh Steel Shutdown Of Two Mills This Summer

Pittsburgh Steel Co. will shut down two of its mills this summer for three weeks.

As a result top speed production is being urged by officials to accumulate enough basic steel to keep the tube and wire mills operating during the shutdown.

The 18 and 28-inch mills will have to be shut down this summer for the installation of new equipment and complete modernization of the 18-inch mill and parts of the new 30-inch continuous billet mill.

Company officials claim there is no way this installation work can be done without the three-week shutdown of both mills.

Open hearths and blooming mills are operating now at peak production in an effort to stock steel supplies for the shutdown period.

A substantial start on this job has already been made. The Keystone, company publication, states, but efforts must be kept at top speed from here on in, if both mills are to produce and ship to the fullest extent of their order book during the shutdown.

Meanwhile, company officials report that it's more than a safe bet that Pittsburgh Steel will operate its steel-making facilities at 100 per cent of rated capacity during the first half of 1957.

In the first three months of this year, Pittsburgh Steel's open hearths produced at 102 per cent of their rated capacity. And now, every indication points to full capacity during the second quarter months.

An examination of the market conditions confronting Pittsburgh Steel shows that:

Manufacturers' Wire — Business should hold at present levels through June.

Merchant Trade Products — Meeting severe competition and at present time, orders coming in are not up to sales forecasts.

Construction Products — Not up to last year's levels. However, there is confidence that this line will improve during summer months.

Oil Country Tubing: — Order books for tubing, casing and drill pipe are solid through July, with good change of staying that way all through the third quarter.

Tubular Specialities: — Feeling the force of competition. Customers are insisting on extra good quality and delivery promise performance.

Sheet Mills: — Allenport's mills should operate at close to present levels during June. In the appliance and automobile industries, there has been a long period of inventory reduction, as well as lower-than-expected production. But now, customers' supplies of steel are believed to be low enough that any spurt in auto or appliance sales would immediately produce orders for sheet.

Thomas Strip Division: — Business should remain at present levels through June. But here's another place where the absolute necessity for on time deliveries and top quality is being apparent.

Johnson Steel & Wire: — Reports show that April's business dipped slightly below the unusually good March levels. Order volume is expected to pick up again in May and June, probably returning to March's volume.

Yough Dam to Open Roadway Across Spillway

It was announced today by the Pittsburgh District, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army, that beginning May 15, the roadway across Youghiogheny Dam will be open to the public from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m Eastern Daylight Time, permitting access to the recreational area in the vicinity of the spillway. This 12-hour schedule will be maintained until further notice.

Col. H. E. Sprague, district engineer, requested that visitors to that area please cooperate by not stopping their automobiles on the dam or at the Operation Tower. Traffic must be kept moving at all times, and personnel will rigidly enforce this ruling.

Youghiogheny River Reservoir proved a popular recreation spot last year, with a total of 380,100 persons visiting the area. Sight-seeing and picnicking accounted for 255,700 of the total, but boating, fishing and swimming also were popular.

The Corps of Engineers is pleased with the public attention being accorded these recreational areas Colonel Sprague stated that "the large attendance at the reservoirs (2,687,000 last year) indicates that the public is receiving a substantial recreational benefit from these civil works projects constructed by the Corps of Engineers.

The Pittsburgh District, Corps of Engineers, has to date constructed 10 flood control dams and reservoirs out of an authorized 17. A million dollars are included in the President's budget for beginning construction on the 11th dam and reservoir: known as the Allegheny River Reservoir, near Kinzua Penn.
